

2007 - 2008 Annual Report

Letter from Eric Schindler, Ph.D. President & CEO

In times of economic uncertainty, the programs and services of Child & Family Resources are ever more important. Despite small funding cuts in some areas, overall our agency experienced moderate growth. We remain committed to our core mission of making children's lives better by building resilient families and ensuring the provision of high quality early child education and care.

New, and sometimes heartbreaking, stories of need and stress are told by our clients as they cope with the recession. The impact of job losses, funding cutbacks, and economic turmoil tend to hit families living at or below the poverty line the hardest. Yet, at the same time, our staff experiences the satisfaction of assisting families in recovery every day. I think of the two-year-old who doesn't yet speak and is now receiving much needed speech therapy, the eight-year-old kept out of a foster home thanks to our intensive in-home family services, and the classroom of four-year-old children benefitting from the coaching, mentoring and commitment of our staff to help childcare centers provide science-based, quality childcare, the positive impact of our agency's work makes a real difference for the citizens of Arizona!

Our success and good work depends on the generosity of our supporters. We appreciate the ongoing faith our donors, funders, and partner agencies have in Child & Family Resources.
